ANGAT KAYUMANGGI YOUTH CAMP 2016 (AKYC 2016)

The AKYC is a three-day student leadership summit organized by the Ayala Young Leaders Alliance – Dumaguete City Chapter in partnership with Gaba-an Youth Lead and Ang Sandigan and in participation of the LGU's and private institutions in the Negros Oriental and Siquijor that aims to:

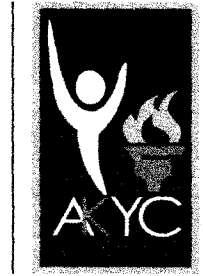

- Build the confidence and hone the leadership skills of the young leaders
- Expose the potential leaders of the possible avenues of service
- Instil in their young minds the value of responsible and principled leadership
- Form them into individuals of nationalistic and idealistic perceptions and actions
- Encourage them to become faithful stewards of their communities and the country's future

The AKYC is one of the many fruits of the Ayala Young Leaders Congress, a concrete expression of the Ayala group's commitment to national development.

The Congress shall be participated in by 30 outstanding student leaders in their junior year selected from the high schools across Negros Oriental and Siquijor. It features lectures, outdoor activities, plenary sessions, and project management seminar. In the plenary sessions, Individuals who highly exemplify excellent academic performance and leadership skills share their own leadership stories and experiences and challenge participants' perspectives to foster growth and development. Also, speakers from the field of youth development and community advocacies share their visions for the community to enlighten the youth. Outdoor challenges develop a sense of self-efficacy, trust and teamwork among the participants and help build a community of learning that will be sustained after the congress. Project management seminar shall be conducted to give the young leaders a feel and a training of actual project management from conceptualization to planning and resource mobilization.

The program provides participants opportunities to network with their peers and develop bonds of mutual respect that will be sustained over the course of their lifetimes. Moreover, as they shall embark on their journey as college students a year after the congress, they shall make informed choices and decisions and even as they assume positions of responsibility in government, private, and the social sectors. Their shared commitment to integrity and national development will hopefully give rise to productive dialogue and cooperation. AKYC alumni are envisioned to become a collective and powerful catalyst for change and national renewal. The 6th Angat Kayumanggi Youth Camp (AKYC 2016) will be held on 19-21 December 2016.
